TROLLEY AND AUTO CRASH

Woman Receives Fatal Injuries in Accident Near Charleroi

CHILDREN ALSO HURT

Two Families Narrowly Escaped Being Wiped out When Monesson Trolley Strikes Large Touring Car.

SEVEN OUT OF NINE WERE INJURED

Monessen, Pa., Nov. 22.—Two of the best-known families of Monessen narrowly escaped being wiped out of existence this evening in an accident which resulted in seven of an automobile's nine occupants being injured.

H. N. Odbert, owner and driver of the car, with his family and J. H. Farquhar and his family were the occupants. Mr. Odbert and Mr. Farquhar escaped with slight injuries, while Mrs. Farquhar was fatally injured and all the others seriously.

The machine was crossing the tracks of the Monessen-Bellevernon trolly line near the Henderson Coal Company's tipple at East Charleroi, a mile north of here, in front of a southbound car running at good speed.

The auto failed to clear the rails in time and the car crashed into the machine, four feet from the rear.

Those in the back seat received the full force of the impact. The front of the street car was smashed, while the big touring car is lying in the ditch, a complete wreck.

Two state policemen riding nearby were first to arrive on the scene. They and the passengers compelled the trolley crew to take the car back to Monessen with the injured motorists.

The state policemen galloped on ahead and summoned physicians who met the car at the Scott livery stable. From there the injured were taken in improvised ambulances to their homes in McKee avenue. Four Monessen doctors and several from Bellevernon are attending the victims of the accident.

All efforts to revive Mrs. Farquhar failed and it was given out by the physicians attending her that she has no chance of recovery.

Mr. Odbert was formerly borough treasurer and is wealthy. Mr. Farquhar conducts a feed store.

Suicide at Clarence

The little town of Clarence, this county, was shocked on Wednesday afternoon when it was learned that Herman Lucas, a young son of Mr. and Mrs Edward Lucas, had ended his life by taking a quantity of laudanum and carbolic acid.

For some time past young Lucas, who was aged about nineteen years, had been working for the Marion Coal company, but it appears that he became indolent and fell a victim to intemperate habits. The admonition of his parents and friends at various times to quite his evil habit seemed to have impressed him so that he became despondent and threatened to take his life. On Tuesday evening he went so far as to attempt to shoot himself, but was foiled in the effort.

Wednesday morning when he was again taken to task about his shortcomings he stated that he was going to do something that day. He then went to his home in Clarence and in some way secured the laudanum and carbolic acid which he took.

He was discovered soon after taking these, but all efforts to save his life were futile. He lingered in agony until about four o'clock when he died. The deceased young man is survived by his parents, two brothers and one sister.

Mrs. Cassie Moore.

Mrs. Cassie Moore, of Flemington, died at Lock Haven hospital on Sunday after a lingering illness of a complication of diseases. She made her home with a son, J. T. Moore at Flemington, and funeral services were held from the house at 2 o'clock this afternoon, services being conducted by Rev. Frownfelter. Mrs. Moore is survived by two sons, Elmer, of Lock Haven, and J. T. of Flemington. She has relatives living in Centre county.

PENNSYVANIA DAY

Many Prominent Men of the State Were Present for the Exercises.

Pennsylvania day was very fittingly observed at State College on Friday and brought to the college town a large number of prominent men of the state, and besides being a great social, military and athletic event several political incidents were developed. A great many of the state's legislators were present and the needs of the institution were strongly presented to them during the day.

General James A. Beaver, of Bellefonte, was toastmaster for the day and a number of addresses were made, some of them reverting to things political. State Senator E. F. Blewitt, of Scranton made a vigorous appeal for the continued support of the Pennsylvania State College. Among the speakers of the day were Mayor Reyburn, of Philadelphia John F. Cox, of Allegheny; W. W. Atterbury, general manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad company; Dr. Wm. P. Wilson, of Philadelphia; Major General Wiley, of Franklin; William Creasy, of Columbia county, and Representative Morrison, of Beaver county. Many of these men with others were transported to State College in special Pullman cars over the Pennsylvania railroad to Bellefonte and thence over the Bellefonte Central railroad.

Other features of the day were the military drill and review of the State College student body, with about 750 in line, the Freshman-Sophomore football game in the afternoon and the dances and receptions at the several fraternity houses in the evening.

A Complete Victory.

The Bellefonte Academy champion eleven closed the football season in Bellefonte on Saturday with a splendid victory over the Philipsburg eleven, defeating them by 29—0 or three touchdowns, two goals from the field and one goal from a touchdown. Wright and Dillon each kicked a beautiful field goal. The Academy played all kinds of football in a most successful manner, line rushes, end runs and forward passes. Capt. Smith and Wyckoff were kept on the side lines to keep them in good condition for the Williamport game on Thanksgiving Day. Oberlin, Dillon, Sleppy, Loudon, Wagner, Wilson, and Thomas, in fact all played championship football. Many substitutes were given a chance in the second half. Dillon scored his hundredth point for the Academy on Saturday.

This was the Academy's tenth victory. Every player and Coach Hall are to be congratulated upon their remarkable record for the season of 1908.

Decision Suits Autoists.

Judge Sadler of Northumberland county has rendered a decision favoring automobilists in the case of Caufman, chaffer for John Hays, a prominent Carlisle attorney, who fought by habeas corpus proceedings a Montgomery County Justice, whose constable arrested Caufman for exceeding the speed limit.

Caufman's speed was taken for only one-quarter of a mile. Judge Sadler decides it is necessary to give proof that one full mile was traversed in less than six minutes, and holds that Justices of a county where a speeding offense was committed have no right to issue warrants for service on alleged violators outside of that county. He also holds that actions for speeding are civil rather than criminal and the Commonwealth cannot be a party the action.

Mrs. Charles Bullock

Mrs. Mary Bullock, wife of Charles Bullock, of Beech Creek, died at her home in that place Tuesday morning, of a complication of diseases. She was aged about 45 years. She was a member of the Methodist church and a kind christian woman.

Deceased is survived by her mother Mrs. Lydia Jones, her husband and four children. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon.

GIRL SHOT THROUGH HEAD

A Terrible Accident Which Resulted In Her Instant Death

BOY HAD FATHER'S GUN

Was About to Leave the House when the Weapon Struck the Door Frame Discharging It.

TOP OF GIRL'S HEAD WAS TORN OFF

Mary M. Garver, a young girl 16 years old, was the victim of a frightful shooting accident at Point View, Blair county, Monday morning that resulted in her untimely death and brought a prospective hunting trip of Harry E Helsel, a youth to a gruesome termination. As he was leaving his home the gun was accidently discharged and the top of the girl's head was blown off. Her death was instantaneous. Coroner Blackburn conducted an inquest and the jury returned a verdict of accidental death and exonerated the youth from blame.

The girl was a daughter of Charles Garver, of Point View. She was motherless and for the past six years had been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. John Helsel at that place. She was treated like one of the family and assisted in the house work. Harry E. Helsel, a boy about 12 years of age, decided to try his luck at hunting Monday morning. He got his father's gun, which was a doubled barreled shot gun which happened to be loaded, and prepared to leave the house. The Garver girl was doing some work in the kitchen and was standing near the centre of the room when the boy started out of the door with the gun slung across his shoulder. It accidently hit the door frame with sufficient force to explode both barrels, the charges striking and tearing off the top of the girl's head. She dropped to the floor dead. The noise of the shot attracted both Mr. and Mrs. Helsel and they hurried to the kitchen to discover the frightful accident and the untimely death of the girl. Dr. J. L. Isenberg, of Williamsburg, was called but when he learned that the girl was dead he did not respond and notified Coroner Blackburn of the accident.

Mrs. Caroline Rider

Mrs. Caroline Rider, widow of the late Abner Rider, died at her home in Coleville Saturday morning a few minutes after nine o'clock, the direct cause of her death being blood poison, she having been ill since last May.

Mrs. Rider who was a daughter of Henry and Sallie Powers, was born and raised in Centre county and had always resided in this vicinity. She was aged 78 years on the twelfth of last July. Her church relationship was held with the Episcopal church. Forty-six years ago she was married to Abner Rider, who preceeded her to the grave nine years ago. Surviving her are nine children as follows: Mrs. Lydia Hoy, Houserville; George, of Indiana; Henry and William, of Bellefonte; Wesley, of Benner township; Mrs. Sallie Emmenhizer, James, Clayton and Abner, of Coleville. One brother, Daniel Powers, of Kansas, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Schrock, of Akron, O., and Mrs. Catherine Arnold of Reedsville also survive.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Peggy Nestlerode and had lived in that community all her life. She was aged about 71 years. All her near relatives are dead and she has been taken care of for the past six years by Tarrence McClintock and family who reside on that place.

The funeral was held Saturday morning at ten o'clock, services being conducted in the Disciple church, by Rev. Patterson. Interment in the cemetery opposite the church.

SUICIDE AT HOUTZDALE

Former Benner Township Man Shot himself Through the head.

Samuel Roan, a former resident of Benner township, but who has long been a resident at Franklin Mines, a small town near Houtzdale, committed suicide at that place Thursday afternoon. He shot himself through the head about two o'clock and died about one hour later.

Mr. Roan had been living by himself and it is thought that the motive for committing the act resulted from financial troubles, being unable to realize on his real estate holdings as he had hoped. The deceased was aged about 72 years, and was a contractor by occupation and prominent as a lumberman. He was born and raised in Benner township, this county. Mr Roan had no family, but is survived by two sisters, residing in Clearfield, and one brother in Osceola.

The remains were brought to Bellefonte on Friday and taken to the home of Harvey Benner, where funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at two o'clock.

Mrs. John Erb.

Mrs. Jennie Erb, wife of John Erb, of Philipsburg, died at her home in that place Thursday morning about 6 o'clock, as a result of a complication of diseases. She had been in poor health for a couple of years.

The deceased was born at Port Matilda, and was aged 49 years, 11 months and 25 days. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Levi Jones, who were well known residents of that place. In August 1884 she was married to John Erb and since that time they have been residents of Philipsburg, where she assisted her husband in his restaurant, being known far and near as an expert cook. Mr. Erb retired from business several years ago on account of his wife's failing health. She was known in Philipsburg as a good neighbor and kind friend and her death is mourned by many.

She is survived by her husband, she is survived by four brothers and one sister, viz: Wesley and George, of Pittsburg; Cromwell, residing in West Virginia; Alfred of Philipsburg, and Mrs. Blanche Hurdsman, of Johnstown.

The funeral took place from the house Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. S. D. Wilson, officiated.

High School Wins From Y. M. C. A.

In a fiercely contested game, the High school team defeated the strong Y. M. C. A. team in the latter's gymnasium Friday evening by the score of 28 to 26 The Y. M. C. A. players greatly out weighed the High school players and it was expected that their experience would greatly aid them in smothering the school boys. Better physical condition and good team work told however and the result was a victory for the High school. Wallace, at centre for the High school, outplayed Kirk, the much heralded Y. M. C. A. centre, completely outclassing him both in shooting and in defensive work. Olewine and Gamble proved their ability to locate the basket. For the Y. M. C. A. Keichline was the star. The line-up.

BOROUGH WILL OWN PLANT

To Generate Electric Current for Light and Power Purposes

AN ECONOMIC COUNCIL

Members Believe They Can Save Money for the Borough Through Municipal Light and Power System.

COMMITTEE HAS BEEN VERY BUSY

Since the last meeting of the Bellefonte council on Monday evening, November 16, when they held an executive session the members of the council and the special committee on light and power have been quite busy. Following that session a special executive session was held on the following Wednesday night. While it was surmised what was taking place at these meetings nothing definite was known. It was known that the borough had an option on the Greene estate at Milesburg and had in contemplation the erection of a plant to furnish street lights for the town and power for the operation of the water works. The option which the borough held with Mr. Simpson, of Huntingdon, and Dr. Greene of Mill Creek, expired last Thursday, hence the necessity of calling the special meeting last Wednesday night. The reports current during the week that the options had been exercised and the site purchased have been verified and the plant is practically assured.

While nothing definite has been given out it is learned that the estate has been secured at a price which is considered very reasonable. It will, however, mean an outlay of from $25,000 to $30,000 for the purchase of the site and the installation of the machinery and equipment. The location of the plant is such as to command a never failing water power and the borough will never suffer any inconvenience in this way. The borough street lighting under the present contract is costing about $5,000 per year, and under the present plans this amount can be applied to the purchase of the new plant. The rental, taxes and repairs of the Phoenix pumping station amounts to about $1,500 a year. When the new plant is erected the current will be transmitted to the water works and the pumping will be done with the power from the borough's own plant. This will mean the abandonment of the Phoenix pumping station and a saving in rental to the borough. Of course from the savings that have been mentioned must be taken the cost of operating the borough plant, but if the business men and citizens of Milesburg are granted their request and given current for lights this expense will be partly covered, leaving a large amount of the saving each year to apply to the purchase of the plant.

The consensus of opinion is that the council has at heart the best interests of the citizens and tax payers of Bellefonte and that such a plant will in the end be a great saving to the borough.

In way of explanation it might be added that the plan of financing this proposition is to have it done by individuals, and when a stipulated amount of rentals have been paid the plant becomes the property of the borough.

Mrs. Ann E Mortorff.

Mrs. Ann Elizabeth, widow of George W. Mortorff, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John A. Rhoades, one mile north of Tipton, at 10.25 Thursday night of a complication of diseases, including paralysis, having been ill the past year. She was born in Adams county, in October, 1824. She was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian church and was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends. She was the mother of twelve children, seven of whom are living, as follows: Mrs. Amanda Giles, of Coalport; Mrs. Mary S. Swisher, of Hopewell; Mrs. Martha E. Harpster, of Burnham; Calvin, of Scotia; Mrs. Clara Rhodes, of Tipton; Mrs. Margaret Miller, of Tipton and John Howard, of Warriorsmark; also by forty-three grandchildren, fifty-three great-grandchildren and one brother, Peter, living in Adams county. The funeral was held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the services being conducted by the Rev. D. N. Dobson of Bellwood. Interment was made at 10.30 Monday morning in the Graysville cemetery.

ANOTHER LETTER

HARRISBURG, PA.
Nov. 23 1908.

Dear Mr. Tuten,—

It seems as if "The Centre Democrat" meant to express a bit of rebuke or administer some reproof in the notice it takes of my letter of congratulation to you a few days ago, over your re-election. It says: "We are sure that a message of different character from him would be appropriate, and more appreciated by his former parishioners in Bellefonte."

Now from my stand-point and convictions, my letter was entirely "appropriate," and I was expressing my own, and not another's convictions. To be candid and honest, I could not, and would not want to write differently. I wrote what I wanted to, just as any other fellow citizen would have done who pays taxes and votes.

Why my letter should have been inappropriate because it expresses its pleasure over the Republican party's success in Centre county, I fail to see. The fact is the "Centre Democrat" inclines to think it was "not appropriate" because I took "pleasure" in the Democratic defeat. I am sorry the editor would deny me such pleasure or criticise me for such harmless gratification. I presume if the issue had terminated in the reverse order, and I had rejoiced with the Democracy, my letter would not have been pronounced inappropriate. It would take more centuries however than the world is old at this writing, before I could come to such a decision.

According to the way the editor puts it, one would infer that all my "former parishioners in Bellefonte," had been Democrats. In this he is mistaken. They were not all alike in this, just as they were not all the same in morals and piety; no congregation is. I have distinct recollection of one of the leading Democrats, a member of my church in Bellefonte, who remarked to me during the former "presidential campaign" that he hoped Roosevelt would be elected, because he believed it would be better for the country."

If a letter of condolence were in order, I would shrink from the task only for one reason and that would be, because of its vast requirements; so deep and tender are the measure of the grief over the defeat of Democracy. All we Republicans did it, and why blame me for it, and the taking of "great pleasure" in it? The country is safe.

Yours truly,
H. C. HOLLOWAY.

Three Engines Wrecked.

At the Hanna street crossing of the Pennsylvania railroad, at Lock Haven, at 6 30 o'clock Tuesday morning, three locomotives were damaged in a collision and two men were injured.

A double header freight, east-bound drawn by two large class engines, was about to enter the south track, or siding to clear the track for another train, when the switch engine came along and was side-swiped. All three locomotives were derailed, and rails and roadbed torn up with the exception of the north track.

Ward McCloskey, fireman of the switch engine, jumped from the cab window and broke a leg, while Engineer Jerry McElwee remained at his post and was pinned to the wreckage until released by railroaders. He was badly cut and bruised, but not seriously hurt. The crews of the two freight engines escaped injury. The Williamsport wreck crew assisted the Lock Haven wreck crew, and before noon traffic was resumed.

Hunters Found Gold

Edward Woods and Thomas Dickinson, lumbermen employed at a saw mill at Oleopolis, about twelve miles from Oil City, took a day off to hunt on Wednesday and as a result are much richer. While digging with the ends of their guns into a rabbit hole they uncovered an iron kettle filled with bright coins, containing $3600 in gold and $22 in silver.

Oldtime residents believe that the money was buried by John Caldwell, an eccentric farmer, who died in an insane asylum thirty years ago. Caldwell sold his farm for $10,000, and persons recall being shown the money but never knew how it had been disposed of. Every place about the farm is now being sought in hopes of finding further treasure hidden by the farmer.

Woman's World

LEADER OF THE "400."

Mrs. John Jacob Astor Will Probably Be Queen of New York Society.

The death of Mrs. William Astor, who for thirty years had been the social dictator of smart New York society, left the very important position unoccupied. There is a rumor that the leadership will pass to her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Jacob Astor. This beautiful young matron is in every way splendidly equipped for the position should she elect to accept it. As Miss Willing of Philadelphia she was a belle of the Quaker City and surrendered to Jack Astor a name old and honored, thus uniting her high social position to his wealth. The Willing family helped make history and were prominent in this country before the Revolution, but the first Astor, as everybody knows, did not start in his fur trading venture till the beginning of the nineteenth century.

The women of the Willing family have always been noted for their beauty, and Mrs. John Jacob Astor, with her lovely prematurely gray hair and aristocratic bearing, is no exception to the rule. As Miss Willing, Mrs. Astor made her first appearance in Newport in 1889. Jack Astor was there that summer. They met always at the same round of social bouts, and by the end of the season he was her devoted admirer. In February of 1891 they were married in the Willing mansion in Philadelphia, and, though this is no fairy tale, they have lived happily ever since. There are two charming children to make life more attractive for this fortunate couple—Vincent, a boy of fourteen, and Alice, a tiny girl of three or four years of age.

During the first years of Mrs. Astor's married life there were misfortunes one after the other to keep the family in mourning and prevent Mrs. Astor from formally appearing or leading in society. But for several seasons she has been prominent in London, at the opera in New York and in the summer at Newport. Although the Fifth avenue home, adjoining the late Mrs. William Astor's house, is magnificent enough to please the most fastidious, the country seat, Ferncliffe, on the Hudson, has always been Mrs. Astor's favorite residence. The stone house on an eminence near the river bank was built about forty years ago. It is not old enough to be called "colonial" nor new enough to be modern, but is justly entitled to the term "good old fashioned." It can put up half a hundred guests for a week end, and no one need sleep on the billiard table either.

On the estate there is a magnificent gymnasium costing $200,000 and a wonderful tennis court. So it goes without saying that Mrs. Astor is decidedly an out of doors woman and devoted to sports. Indeed, she may be said to have the athletic fever. She rides horses, drives a spirited cob and is fond of running her own automobile. Another of Mrs. Astor's favorite sports is shooting. There is a big target at Ferncliffe bearing many marks close up to the bullseye placed there by this fair Diana's unerring aim with rifle and revolver. Besides, there is a clay pigeon trap, and more than once milady has been seen to bring down nineteen clay pigeons out of twenty. Then she plays tennis, and of course she is a good golf player. As for sailing boats, Mr. Astor always looks on with pride when his wife holds the tiller.

The magnificent Colony club of New York, one of the finest of woman's clubs, owes its existence to Mrs. Astor's influence.

How to Use the Hands.

Many a woman has at times keenly sympathized with the amateur actress who exclaimed in dismay, "But what shall I do with my hands, monsieur?" The reply would be as unintelligible to a great many others as it was to her, "Let them hang at the end of your arms." Yet that is precisely the thing to do with them.

Delsarte's old law, "Strength at the center and freedom at the extremities," is one of the most effective rules for attaining grace of body—and one of the least understood. "Strength" is often interpreted as rigidity and "freedom" as carelessness, which is not at all a correct elucidation of the terms. Taken as a whole, the waist is the center, and the law means that it should be held firmly, the torso and lower portions of the body swung free from it. So with the arms. The wrist is the center, the hands the extremities, and therefore in moving the arm the wrist should lead always, the back of it in any upward movement, the front when the motion is downward.

A beautiful hand is an inheritance to be desired, but it loses half its beauty value unless it expresses sympathy and grace in its every movement.

Here is one exercise, very simple and very old, but one which cannot be brought to mind too often:

Double the forearms against the upper arm so that the backs of the hands touch the shoulders. Drop the hands forward from the wrist as though there were no life in them and shake them from that position. This tends to make the wrist supple and leads to a second exercise that trains the wrist to lead. Allow the arms to hang limp at the sides. Lift the arm, then the wrist, then the hand. Each movement follows so closely upon the next that they seem to be one. A few moments of regular practice of this exercise, after the other devitalizing one, will really work an amazing improvement. Very shortly there will be no need for the question, "What shall I do with my hands?"

Washing Blankets.

When blankets are to be washed soap should be cut into small pieces and dissolved into a jelly. This should be added to warm water, enough to form a suds, and borax put in for softening and purifying purposes.

Into this the blankets should be entirely immersed and allowed to remain for half an hour. The water should not be allowed to get cold.

After the blankets are soaked through they should be soused up and down to release the dirt, then put through a wringer. After this the blankets are put through a second suds prepared in the same way as the first. They are squeezed, but not rubbed.

A board should not be used, and, above all, soap should never be rubbed directly on the blanket. This not only causes it to shrink, but the small hairs are all matted by the soap, and the blanket loses its fluffy appearance.

They should be rinsed in warm water with borax or ammonia added to keep them soft and dried on a day of sun and wind.

Tinted Walls Attractive.

Many women who are having their houses done over this winter are choosing paint instead of paper for all the upstairs rooms.

They think this method more hygienic and more cleanly. The walls can be washed down and do not need to be renewed each season.

Not only pale tints, but rich, warm ones, are used, such as terra cotta, german blue and dull red. All the tones of heavy gray are popular.

For the nursery light blue, rose pink and leaf green are used. The ceiling and walls are alike, and there is no attempt at fresco or dado. A molding is used of stained wood, usually white or buff.

Painted walls, with varnished hardwood floors, insure cleanliness and health in a sleeping room.

Women and children who have tried these find themselves suffocating in rooms with carpets, thick wall papers and curtain drapery.

Things Worth Knowing.

When sandwiches of different kinds are served on the same plate, they should be so arranged and marked that the guest may choose according to his or her taste.

A sweet sandwich having cherries inside should have half a cherry on one corner, and that with preserved ginger should be similarly marked with the ginger.

That, if possible, a patient should be induced to give up tea and coffee during convalescence. In a weakened condition they are apt to induce nervousness and sleeplessness.

If lamp chimneys are so badly smoked that they are unsightly, clean them with vinegar and salt. This will remove spots of smoke and leave the glass bright.

An Auto Workbasket.

An automobile workbox is one of the up to date possessions of the woman who does her own mending. The tiny straw car suggests tidiness and dispatch. Spools of thread, papers of needles, scissors and bodkins find a place in the various parts of the motor. Under the chauffeur's seat the spools are arranged, while the tonneau holds rows of needles and pins. The thimble occupies a place all its own on top of the steering wheel, while the car opens at the back to disclose a tiny compartment for the other small sewing conveniences which are always getting lost or misplaced in the large workbox of a single compartment.

Womanly Logic.

"Never," groaned the picture dealer, "never try to argue a woman into believing that she ought to pay a bill when she thinks otherwise. I tried it this morning—presented a bill for some stuff ordered two months ago. Here was the irrefutable logic:

"'I never ordered any pictures.'

"'If I did, you never delivered them.'

"'If I did, I never got them.'

"'If I did, I paid for them.'

"'And if I didn't I must have had some good reason for it.'

"'And if I had of course I won't pay.'"

Good wives and mothers are as plentiful as ever, and in these days many of our smartest women read and think and meditate and lead the simple life with earnest endeavor. There are marked signs of evolution among the flower of our womanhood.

WINDOW DRAPERIES.

Old Madras Curtains Come Into Play In New Scheme.

The present style of draping the windows at the sides with narrow curtains that come only to the sill and hanging a valance of the same material over the top provides use for curtains that have seen their best days and that with the former style of draping would have to be cast aside. Old madras curtains, because of the width of the material, come into play for the purpose. If the material is forty-eight inches wide it may be cut lengthwise through the center and one width serve for both sides of the window. The top of each strip should be shirred on to a strip of tape that is long enough to cover the window casing and a little of the window, only an inch or two of the latter. They should be tacked on to the casing of the window at the top. The valance is usually from nine to twelve inches deep, according to the height of the window. Hem this at the bottom, turn in the top and lay the top side in series of inch plaits, each three in a group and the groups about four inches apart. These plaits stand out in an upright inch or inch and a half head, but at the bottom of the plaits, where the valance is tacked on to a tape, the plaits are tacked down and drawn in flat. Put a curtain pin at the back of each cluster of plaits and hang it over a ring on a small brass rod. At the ends there should be a ring outside the brackets, and the valance should have no plaits within four inches of the end on either side. This allows for an easy hanging of the valance around the bracket. The small extension gilt rods are much cheaper than the regular brass rods and answer every purpose, with balls at the ends. They cost about 35 cents each. Small rings to go with them are about 10 cents a dozen. The curtain hooks that sew to the curtain rather than pin are the most satisfactory. The fish nets come in lovely reds, greens and, indeed, all the fashionable colors. It is one of the fancies of the moment to match the wall paper with its own prevailing color in window draperies. These nets come at all prices, from less than 20 cents up.

AN ARTISTIC ROOM.

The Prima Donna Mary Garden's Charming Boudoir.

One of the prettiest boudoirs in New York is the little drawing room in which Miss Mary Garden, the prima donna, receives her friends. This room has two windows facing south and two facing east, so that even without its golden decorations it would be a sunshiny apartment. The walls are hung with a two toned yellow paper with broad stripes. The woodwork is painted white, and the windows are hung with creamy net against the panes and with straight curtains of yellow silk that reach to the sills. The light oaken floor is strewn with rugs, all small ones, and all in rather light tones of blue and rose and yellow and green.

At one side of the room is a high backed, spacious mahogany davenport, upholstered with golden brown velvet. This is piled with pillows covered with golden silk. Most of the chairs are covered with yellow silks, and one or two have gilt frames. On the baby grand piano are tall vases of silver and crystal holding yellow roses and yellow chrysanthemums, and a great silver lamp has a pierced silver shade over one of yellow silk. A few photographs in silver frames and an etching or two in narrow frames of gold or black wood adorn the walls. The glory of this room is the mantel. It is of white paneling, simple and beautiful, with its long, straight lines and high white shelf. In the center of the shelf on a pedestal is a marble bust of a Florentine child. At either end of the shelf is a piece of oriental embroidery in blue and gold which hangs straight down to the floor without fold or fullness, the beauty of the workmanship and the charm of the color giving the final touch of artistic perfection to this lovely room.

The Thoroughbred.

There is an unwritten law for people who are thoroughbred—the real gentleman and the real lady—which compels them to keep their troubles, their ailments, their sorrows, their worries, their losses, to themselves. There is a fine discipline in it. It mellows the character and sweetens the life. But when these things are not borne heroically they mar the character and leave their ugly traces in the face. Their hideous forms appear in the manner and disfigure the whole life.

Learn to consume your own smoke. If you have misfortunes, pains, diseases, losses, keep them to yourself. Bury them. Those who know you have them will love you and admire you infinitely more for this suppression. A stout heart and persistent cheerfulness will be more than a match for all your troubles.

Glad of His Sympathy.

Lady Gordon quotes in her book, "Unforeseen Conclusions," a man who said, "I would rather be a month in the stokehold of a Russian man-of-war than a fortnight under the artillery of the servants' hall." She is glad to hear that at least one man does not dismiss the household troubles that a woman must bear as trifles. "In the morning encounters with the cook," she says, "the daily tussle for supremacy with the lady's maid, we are each in our way a feminine Admiral Nelson, without the reward of universal applause bestowed upon us. Quite as much courage is often needed to descend to the kitchen as down into the deep in a submarine."

EXTORTIONER WAS TRAPPED

Mifflinburg Excited Over Sensational Black Hand Affair

MAN ASKED FOR $300

Man Who Came to get Hidden Money was Captured by a Posse of Armed Watchers by Decoy

TWO MEN IN JAIL AT LEWISBURG.

Paul Hoffman, aged 22, and his brother-in-law Frank Cooney, aged 28 of Mifflinburg, are in jail at Lewisburg charged with an attempt to extort money from W. S. Brown, a prominent carriage manufacture of Mifflinburg by Black Hand methods.

One morning last week W. S. Brown, of Mifflinburg found a letter on the floor of his office, the missive evidently having been slipped under the door during the night. The letter directed that he put $300 in a box and deposit the latter on the hill in the cornfield opposite D. B. Miller's orchard on or before Tuesday, Nov. 18 by 5 o'clock p. m. In the event of failure to carry out the directions the thereat was made that both his house and factory would either be burned or dynamited and if necessary himself and family would be killed.

Mr. Brown, a few evenings subequents to the receipt of the notice, deposited a letter at the point in the cornfield indicated, in which he asked whether $150 would not do. Sunday night another note was pushed under the door of Mr. Brown's office in which the writer decared that $150 would not do—that it must be $300 or nothing. Then Mr. Brown began to arrange the trap. He organized a posse of eighteen men, and last night at 9 o'clock these men scattered in around the cornfield, forming a veritable cordon of watches, each one armed with a gun or pistol. One man was stationed at the attic window of a house near the spot where the decoy box was placed. The man was directed if he saw anybody approaching the spot where the box was hidden, to fire three shots in rapid succession, this signal to mean that the posse was to close in from all sides.

The watchers had been on guard less than half an hour when the gun signal was given. The nearest man to the box's hiding place ran into a fellow who was running away, and who, at sight of the vigilante, drew a pistol. But by this time another watcher came up from the rear and the "Black Hand" chap was overpowered. He proved to be Paul Hoffman, a well know resident of Mifflinburg. Hoffman broke down and declared that his brother-in-law, Cooney, was the chief mover in the plot. Cooney was found at his home and arrested. Both men were then taken before Squire Thomas Getkin, where in default of $1,000 bail each, they were committed to the county jail to await trial.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous diarrhea), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections, it is often successful in affecting cures.

The "Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases—those peculiar weaknesses, derangements and irregularities incident to women only. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nervine. For weak worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulæ of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glyceric extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

The Guild's Entertainment

The entertainment given by the Woman's Guild of the Episcopal church on Wednesday evening was a very pleasing and interesting one. From start to finish the interest never lagged and some of the acts elicited roars of laughter. Messrs. Mallott, Lingle and Barnes of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium class did some very clever athletic stunts that were equal to some of the professionals. The Dutch dance by eight young ladies clad in true German attire, with wooden shoes, was one of the hits of the evening and they were heartily applauded. Miss Stokes' rendition of several very difficult pieces of classical music on the piano was very well received by the audience. The German band was one of the best laugh provoking stunts of the evening, the costumes being of the "Little German Band" variety. With the Dutch songs and the character of the acting in connection with it would have made professionals stand up and take notice.

Through the courtesy of Manager Garman of the opera house the numbers of the program were interspersed with moving pictures, the whole making one of the best entertainments of the kind seen for many a day. Miss Long, the pianist of the Electric theatre, played during the evening.

Stolen Hides Recovered

On the night of November 6th a lot of hides, valued at $100.00, were stolen from the slaughter house of W. A. Brown, near Osceola.

The matter was placed in the hands of Sergeant John E. Walsh, of the State Constabulary, who put his men to work to try to ferret out the mystery. They have been doing some neat detective work, and while unable as yet to definitely fasten the stealing upon any particular persons, succeeded in recovering the hides, and believe they will soon discover the parties guilty of the robbery.

Private Lee Harpole, Monday evening, succeeded in getting a new clue, and following up the "trail," located the hides in the woods, buried in the ground, probably four miles out from Philipsburg. Mr. Brown was summoned, recognized the hides as his property, and had them taken back to Osceola.

To Fix Minimum Salary.

Married clergymen to receive a salary of not less than $1200 a year and a suitable place to live, or $1500 in clear money and unmarried clergymen to receive not less than $1200 a year—that is the gist of a resolution passed at the annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York.

The resolution, which was proposed by Rev. Dr. Leighton Parks, rector of St. Bartholomew's church was greeted with much applause. The Rev. Dr. Parks explained that there are twenty-one mission stations in the diocese, paying clergymen less than $1200 annually, fifteen of these clergymen are married; one minister draws no salary, another receives $410 a year and seven receive $1000 each. Bishop Greer gave his hearty approval to the resolution.

Will Build Large Mill.

A large saw mill is soon to be built at Hawk Run, near Philipsburg by the Whitmer-Steele Co., of Sunbury, who are among the largest lumber operators in the state. They have purchased about $8,000 acres of timber land in Morris and Graham townships, Clearfield county. It is one of the most valuable tracts standing in the state, much of it being virgin pine.

The building of the mill at Hawk Run will give the owners excellent shipping facilities over the Pennsylvania and N. Y. C. railroads. The timber will be brought to the mill on a narrow gauge railroad. Surveys are now being made and everything will be in readiness for operation in the next month or six weeks. This large mill will mean the employment of a number of men and the distribution of a large amount of money in that vicinity and will add materially to Philipsburg's prosperity.

A Cat Story.

This cat story is from the Lock Haven Express: "James Frantz, who owns a small farm about two miles west of Hyner, close to the railroad, moved his family to Antes Fort, Lycoming county, about a year ago and during the interim the place was occupied by a tenant, James Kelly, with a large family of children. When the Frantz family moved away a large tiger gray cat was left behind, but during the entire year's absence Grimalkin was never seen by the Kelly family. A few weeks ago, however, Mr. Frantz concluded to return to his own home, and the Kelly family having been notified sought another tenement several miles distant. A short time after Mr. Frantz returned the old cat put in an appearance, apparently very happy to be once more united to his friends.

A Serious Problem.

The citizens of Williamsport are face to face with a serious problem. A number of serious fires, of mysterious origin, recently, aroused the suspion that the cause might be found in the dangerous condition of the wires which interlaced the streets. Accordingly an expert was secured to make an investigation along that line, and it is understood that he will report that the trees of Williamsport have been strung with wires in such utter disregard of the safety of life and property that fires and possibly fatal accidents are liable to occur at any moment. The only possible remedy will be the rewiring of practically the entire city, which will necessitate a great public expense.

Donation Day

It should be remembered by all that Thanksgiving day will be observed at the Bellefonte hospital as Donation day. Contributions of anything that will be of service or use at the hospital are solicited and will be thankfully received. Letters or packages can be addressed in care of the superintendent of the hospital, or if notified contributions will be called for. If more convenient contributions will be received previous to this day and every family in Bellefonte should in some way assist this worthy institution with a contribution of either money or supplies.

Thanksgiving Pumpkin Pie

YOU may talk about your foreign cooks and all the things they make,
The thousand dainty dishes that they stew and boil and bake;
You may prate about their wondrous skill in culinary arts,
How deftly they can manufacture puddings, pies and tarts;
Go praise the French and German chefs and the Italians, too,
For making salads, sauces, soups and fancy dishes new,
But for a toothsome morsel upon which I can rely
Just give to me a solid wedge of Yankee pumpkin pie!

Let those of fashionable tastes turn up the nose in pride
And think it quite plebeian to be simply satisfied;
Let them eat their pate de foie gras, their truffles and such stuff
With foreign names, suspicious looks and odors rank enough;

JUST GIVE TO ME A SOLID WEDGE OF YANKEE PUMPKIN PIE!

Let them eat those airy pastry puffs they think so very nice
Because they've got outlandish names and cost a mighty price,
But, say, to curb your appetite and your stomach satisfy
There's nothing like a great big chunk of Yankee pumpkin pie!

Roast beef may have more nutriment, more body building worth;
Veal, mutton, lamb, be nourishing and stretching of your girth;
Your chicken, duck or turkey may suit palates very fine,
But these can take a back seat when I'm passing down the line.
Fish, flesh and fowl may serve to stay the appetites of some,
But you must treat me better when I to your table come.
Leave out the high toned viands, let each dainty dish go by,
If I can get my face fast in a piece of pumpkin pie!

THANKSGIVING IN FRANCE.

M. Blanc's Surprise For His American Guests.

"The most un-American Thanksgiving I ever spent was in a French hotel ten years ago," says a woman contributor to the New York Globe. "The proprietor was a friendly old soul and liberal to a fault. He not only invited all the guests in the house to dinner, but he sent invitations to ex-guests as well. One family who had spent the previous winter with him had gone home to America, leaving their daughter at school. Old M. Blanc sent an invitation to the school, and the demoiselle Americaine and a governess came to Paris and spent the day at the hotel. I had a country house near Paris then, but M. Blanc did not forget me either. So I went into Paris, taking my two girls with me. The hotel was a small one, but well known, and it was a rendezvous for many interesting Americans. The tables were decked with holly and mistletoe. M. Blanc in his ardor had mixed up our American fetes. He moved about, smiling mysteriously and whispering to questioners that he had a surprise in store for us—a dessert which would make us all feel as if we were not in Paris at all, but back in that faroff 'chez vous' whence we had come. There were much laughing and merriment, and we drank M. Blanc's health in his best wine as a mark of appreciation. His waiters soon appeared tottering beneath the weight of a huge plum pudding wreathed in holly and bearing an American and a French flag. Of course we heaped him with praise. He beamed and beamed, poured brandy over his chef d'oeuvre and lighted it, served it himself and said to each person as they thanked him: 'Did I not tell you you would feel chez vous? It is good and hot. Your national dish! Will you have some more fire?'"

"YOUR NATIONAL DISH."

The Athletes' Dinner.

De Style—What makes you think the Harrants are going to have a regular athletic Thanksgiving dinner?

Gunbusta—Why, they had their turkey killed with a golf club and stuffed with tennis balls.

HIS TURKEY WAS CROW.

Why the Fine Old Gentleman Hates Practical Politics.

"Bluest Thanksgiving I ever spent?" mused the fine old gentleman who has an unconquerable antipathy to practical politics. "It stands out in my memory like an obelisk on a plane, and it was not so very long ago either.

"I had been induced that fall to run for an important public office. It was done against by better judgment and under great pressure, but when a man enters such a fight he wants to win. I was in a close district and determined to put up the very best fight that the circumstances would permit. I advertised at once for an extra stenographer and from the many who responded selected a beautiful, bright and dashing young woman who justified my immediate faith in her ability. She did all my private correspondence, knew as much about the inside of the campaign as I did, working day and night with a willingness that was surprising, and even took from one of my shrewdest advisers the list of voters in the strongest section with which I had to contend, with full instructions as to how the most influential persons among them could be won to my cause. It was great work, and yet I fell several hundred short of the normal party vote.

A BEAUTIFUL, DASHING YOUNG WOMAN.

"My successful opponent lived in a neighboring town and graciously invited me to be his guest on the following Thanksgiving. It would have looked surly to refuse, and I went. It was really an admirable social function, but the few hours I put in there were torture. The host met me with a hearty hand clasp. Turning he said, 'My wife.' Resplendent in satin and jewels I saw my stenographer. 'Love and war,' she murmured. 'He thinks I was visiting my old home in New England.' I held my peace, but that fatted turkey tasted like crow."—Detroit Free Press.

Fatherly Advice.

"The farmer," said the young turkey, "seems to be very fond of me. He throws the choicest morsels of corn to me every day and in many ways shows his admiration for me."

"Well," advised the old turkey, "I wouldn't let it go on if I were you. You are apt to lose your head over it."

Turkey Test

It Was Great, but It Drove One Man to Drink.

HE had been gazing long and earnestly at the rows of turkeys hanging from the hooks of a stand in Washington market, and the poultryman began to eye him suspiciously. He did not look like a thief, the mild look in his eye denoting anything but the gleam of acquisition. Still, his actions were not calculated to inspire confidence.

Every now and then he would walk up to the rack and feel a gobbler's breastbone, then stand off and take a side look at the fowl, moving around presently and gazing at it from the other side. In this way he would admire it from all points of view and seemed to derive immense satisfaction from the observation.

The poultryman was fast becoming nervous over these strange proceedings, and to put an end to his anxiety as to the man's intentions he approached him and asked:

"Well, sir, what can I do for you?"

The man started and for a moment appeared to be disconcerted; but, recovering himself somewhat, he blushingly stammered:

"Why, you see, I don't quite know yet."

"Well, it's about time you did," gruffly replied the poultryman.

"Ye-yes—I suppose so, but I don't. I want to get a turkey, but I want to be quite sure of my ground before I proceed."

The poultryman looked at him still more suspiciously.

"I dare say you will think me a little peculiar," continued the stranger, "but the fact is my wife is not very well, and she has sent me to buy the turkey for our Thanksgiving dinner. Now, I never bought a turkey in my life, and I don't want to make a mistake in it. I have full instructions from my wife, but still it requires great care to carry them out."

"Oh, if that's all," said the poultryman, reassured, "I will help you out."

"You will?" asked the man eagerly.

"With pleasure. What's the matter with this one?" And he took down a turkey and held it up to view.

"Does his breast move in or out under pressure?" asked the purchaser doubtfully.

"Try it for yourself."

"It seems flexible," said the man, gingerly pressing his fingers upon the part mentioned. "You know, my wife is a great judge of these things, and she told me all about it. Now about the color of the legs. They should be purply blue, with just a tinge of gray."

"Well, there they are. You couldn't get anything nearer the description unless we painted them for you."

"No, no. I don't want 'em painted. She said the color should be natural. Now about the flesh. I want to pinch that and see that it is elastic."

"Well, pinch," said the dealer.

The purchaser pinched and pinched until there was not an inch of the bird not fairly covered. Then he gave a sigh of satisfaction.

"That seems all right. But there's one thing more—the wings. You don't mind my twisting them according to my wife's instructions? She calls that the crowning test of tenderness." And he delicately turned them around as he would the knob of a door. This done, he opened the beak and looked into the mouth, devoting considerable time to a minute examination of the tip of the tongue. Finally he announced his satisfaction, paid for the turkey and started off with it.

He reached the door, then suddenly turned.

"Great heavens! I forgot to examine the flexibility of the spur, and without being backed by that all other tests are useless."

But the poultryman had vanished into a nearby saloon and at that moment was engaged in toning up his nerves for the next customer.—New York Herald.

NO LONGER A MODEL.

For some years it has been quite common among altruists and public men in the United States to cite Germany as furnishing a model after which we might well pattern. Certain features of her banking, of her currency system, of insurance, pensions, employers' liability and the physical and financial protection of workingmen have been held up as worthy of introduction in this country, to say nothing of other aspects of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Possibly there was ample basis for suggestions along these lines. There is no doubt that we have much to learn and that Germany is progressive in some respects in which the United States lags.

But now we find no less a personage than Chancellor Von Buelow telling the reichstag that the government of Germany is partly a failure; that Germany is unpopular among other nations because its financial system is manifestly its weakest point; that it is too penurious to maintain a proper standard upon the seas, and that it is a "diplomatic beggar." These are startling confessions, and they will be all the more distasteful to the German people because they are accompanied by a demand for new taxes that will produce an additional revenue of $125,000,000 a year. Consumers of gas and electricity are to be taxed on their bills, and so with burners, of either kind, all newspaper advertisements and all legacies, and of course the tax on beer, spirits, wine and tabacco goes up. This resort to unusual forms of taxation indicates that the ordinary sources of internal revenue have been exhausted.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER says he got his start by borrowing $2,000. That, however, is not a complete recipe for success.

THE citizens of Bellefonte and Centre county should keep in mind that Thanksgiving Day is also Donation Day at the Bellefonte hospital. If every resident of the county whom the hospital has helped would make a small donation the total would be magnificent.

SINCE a cord of wood ordinarily yields about one ton of mechanical pulp or about one-half ton of chemical pulp, the growing scarcity of the wood has stimulated a search for some substitute. This latter seems to have been found in the common everyday cornstalk, which flourishes in prodigal profusion all over our land; and with its transmutation has begun the vanishment of the paper trust spectre.

THE citizen who keeps his sidewalk clear of snow and ice in winter displays his wisdom. He is in a way a benefactor of humanity, because by keeping his sidewalk clean he prevents accidents to pedestrians He is also wise because if he clears the snow from his sidewalk when the "beautiful" is fresh he will save himself a great deal of hard labor after the snow has become hardened by travel over it. He also complies with a law governing the removal of snow and ice from sidewalks, a law which seems to be more honored in its violation than in its observance in this city.

THE democratic candidate for congress in the twenty-eigth Pennsylvania district has filed a statement from which it appears that he expended the sum of ten cents This was squandered for postage stamps.

IT would be nice for Taft if he could have been elected president for $200,000 the amount he will receive as salary during his term of office, and would have received as salary the amount it cost to elect him—$1,700,000.

WE do not wish to be unkind, nor to be censorious, but it seems to us that the hens have not taken the election of Taft in the proper light. They are evidently taking time off from their duties to celebrate when they should be at work. Fifty cents a dozen for eggs is not the proper contribution to the era of good feeling.

THERE will be much interest in the news that Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland has gone to the wall financially, and also considerable sympathy for him. Still most any man should know that when he starts out deliberately to smash somebody else, and more particularly somebody else's property, be invites reprisals and usually gets them.

FEW persons have an adequate conception of the amount of literature sent out by both political parties during the late campaign: We, here in Pennsylvania, escaped the deluge, because it was well known by both sides that no amount of political documents could help or harm in this state. Yet the government printing office printed for the several political parties 7,418-200 speeches, weighing in all 200 tons which were sent out from Washington alone.

700 Miles of State Road.

The State Highway Department, established less than half a dozen years ago, has constructed more than 700 miles of first-class roads in Pennsylvania. This interesting fact is revealed in the annual report of Highway Commissioner Joseph W. Hunter for the year 1907, supplemented with the figures for the work of 1908.

Because each of the sixty-seven counties is entitled to its share of State road appropriation, the new highways have necessarily been constructed in short sections, scattered all over the State. For this reason it is possible that many citizens do not appreciate the magnitude of the work accomplished.

As a matter of fact, the State roads thus far constructed if laid together, would constitute two complete highways the full length of the State.

Commissioner Hunter recommends appropriations of at least $4,000,000 a year for ten years to carry out a comprehensive program of roadbuilding, including trunk lines between the principal centers of population. There is no doubt that public sentiment is largely in favor of pushing the State roadbuilding as rapidly as possible, and there is every reason to believe the coming Legislature will try to comply with Commissioner Hunter's request.

The amount of money to be appropriated for roadmaking will depend somewhat on the size of the expenditures authorized for other public work, but it is certain that the people will not approve anything short of the largest possible allotment for good roads.

Ramsey—Noll.

Monday morning Nov. 23rd, Mr. H. Theodore Ramsey, of Harrisburg, Pa., and Miss Ethel E. Noll of Pleasant Gap, were married at the Reformed parsonage by Rev. Ambrose M. Schmidt, D. D.

Mr. Ramsey was formerly of Milroy, Pa. and is now bookkeeper for Swift & Co., in their Harrisburg office. Miss Noll is the only daughter of Mrs. Emaline Noll. The best wishes of their many friends go with them to their future home in Harrisburg.

Beer Money and Churches.

In the eighteenth century there were no temperance societies or bands of hope, nor Rechabites and blue ribbon army. To be as "drunk as a lord" was the height of human felicity. It was the age of "three bottle men," of convivial toasts, of drinking songs. Even the church indirectly encouraged intemperance. There were certain districts where at Whitsuntide the churchwardens were accustomed to levy contributions of malt from the parishioners. This was brewed into strong ale and sold in the church. The Whitsuntide topers had, however, a pious method in their madness.

The money spent on the beer was expended by the churchwardens in church maintenance, and the muddled roisterers no doubt believed themselves to be pillars of the church even when, under the influence of the alcohol, they rolled upon its pavement. They thought themselves supporters of the church when they wanted "supporting" themselves and deemed themselves most saintly when they were most soddened. Until as recently as 1827 (when the license was withdrawn) a church and public house were covered by one roof at Deepdale, midway between Derby and Nottingham. A door that could be opened at will served to separate the consecrated interior of the church from the common taproom of the tavern!—Chambers' Journal.

Good Bait.

"I got Cleveland's autograph," said the friend, "by addressing to him a little ode on his splendid work in the White House anent the Russo-Japanese war—or was it something else? At any rate, I shall never forget my delight when, by return mail, Mr. Cleveland wrote:

"'Dear Sir—I have read your verses with interest. They appear to me very deficient in sense and substance.'

"I sent a sonnet of sympathy to Bernard Shaw on the failure of his play, 'His House In Order,' or some such title. Mr. Shaw replied on a post card as follows:

"'Thank you very much for your sonnet, which seems at least sincere.'

"I once ventured to address a rondeau to Ellen Terry. In it I praised her beauty passionately. Miss Terry sent me a long and interesting note of acknowledgment, in the course of which she said:

"'I noticed many faults and weaknesses in your rondeau, which, however, made me laugh heartily.'"—Exchange.

At Last.

Mrs. Silas Bennett was a philosopher. On a certain dismal occasion some of the neighboring women were condoling with her. With commendable cheerfulness she replied:

"I've raised four girls an' three boys, expectin' every time they'd be twins and red headed like their Grandpa Bennett, an' yet they ain't.

"An' I've worried consid'ble over smallpox breakin' out in my big family. So fer 'tain't.

"Last summer durin' July an' August an' mebbe part of September I was real meloncholic, fearin' I'd got an appendix, but I guess I ain't.

"An' through it all it never onct occurred to me that I'd be the one to fall through them rotten old meetin' house steps an' break my leg in two places, but I be."

In Extremis.

Late one night a clergyman was called out to minister to an old man—a worker upon the adjacent railway—who was supposed to be dying. The summons was brought by another old man, the elder brother of the stricken one. While he was bustling about, making preparations for departure, the clergyman forgot momentarily the social status of his visitor and asked, "Is he in extremis?"

The old man was not going to be beaten. "Aye, he's right in, your reverence." After a pause he added as a clincher: "Clean in, poor chap. Right up to the neck, sir."—Cornhill Magazine.

He Had Been There.

Rodrick—Howdy, old man? We are going on a camping trip soon. Did you ever enjoy a camping trip where you had to do your own cooking and sleep beneath the stars? Van Albert—Nope. Rodrick—What? Do you mean to say you have never been on a camping trip? Van Albert—No. I mean to say that I never enjoyed one.—Chicago News.

Hospitality.

Mamma—Tommy, I see you took two pieces of cake instead of one, as I told you. Why did you do that? Tommy—Well, mamma, I was playing that another little boy was visiting me, and I knew you wouldn't mind me giving him a piece.—Chicago News.

Learning Early.

A Sunday school teacher had been telling her class the story of the good Samaritan. When she asked them what the story meant a little boy said, "It means that when I am in trouble my neighbors must help me."—Universalist Leader.

Won't Figures Lie?

Mrs. Hoyle—I am just twenty-three. Mrs. Doyle—I don't see how you figure it. You were twenty-two when you had your black silk, and you haven't had a new dress for ten years.—New York Press.

He Crowed Too Soon.

She—You'll be glad to learn, dear, that I've got out of visiting our relatives. He—Grand! Splendid! It hung over me like a cloud. How did you manage it? She—Oh, I asked them here!

A HOME WHERE PERUNA IS USED.

Residence of Mr. C. Hallock, Antwerp, Ohio.

CATARRH OF THE HEAD.

Mr. C. Hallock, Antwerp, Ohio, writes: "My daughter, Allie, after taking three bottles of your Peruna, is entirely cured of catarrh of the head of two years standing.

"We have used Peruna as a general tonic, as well as for catarrh, and are well pleased with it, and recommend it to anybody who has catarrh.

"Anybody wishing any information can write to me."

Could Take No Food.

Mr. William F. Burke, 1365 Frankford Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

"On the 19th of February, 1901, I was taken with cramps that extended from just below my throat to the bottom of my stomach. They were so severe that my wife had to go for a doctor about two o'clock in the morning.

"I had from February until July of that year three doctors, and they were giving me medicine for kidney, liver and bladder troubles, and after taking all kinds of their mixtures, in the month of July I could neither eat nor drink. For three weeks I had not taken a morsel of food except in a liquid form. At the end of that time I could not drink milk or water except in small sips, which caused me great pain.

"I had given up all hope of living more than a week or two at most. I told my wife I thought I had catarrh of the stomach. She seemed to think so too, and having read of Peruna I decided to give it a trial.

"I took several doses that evening, and for the first time in weeks rested fairly that night.

"I kept on using Peruna as I had started, and after using it three days and nights the pains in my chest and stomach disappeared, and they have never appeared since, and it will be two years this July."

Pe-ru-na Relieved All Symptoms.

Mr. J. C. Crumpacker, R. R. 1, Kokomo, Ind., writes:

"I can say that I have nothing to complain of now. I feel well, rest well at night, have a good but moderate appetite, can eat almost any kind of food.

"I have no aches or pains anywhere, and can do some kind of work every day. I must say I can stand as much fatigue as I ever could, and feel good over it.

"The hemorrhage has yielded to Peruna, the grip has done the same, as well as pains and aches of all kinds.

"The roaring noise has entirely left my ears and head, my mind is clear, my recollection good, my bowels are regular, and I just simply feel easy all over.

"The cure of my case was surely a victory."

Catarrh of Long Standing.

Mr. C. A. Renstrom, 570 Seventh St., Ogden, Utah, writes: "I take great pleasure in stating to you that your medicine, Peruna, has completely cured me of a long-standing case of catarrh.

"I had consulted noted doctors without any relief. By persistent urging of a friend I commenced the use of your wonderful Peruna with the best of results, and today I highly recommend it to any one suffering from catarrh in any form.

"As for myself, I suffered untold agony, but today I feel as spry as any one, with more ambition and confidence in myself than I have enjoyed for years.

"All my friends say I look better than ever before, and I urge them all to try Peruna, and have sold dozens of bottles with the greatest of satisfaction.

"Your Peruna is the greatest tonic and builder for a broken-down constitution arising from that dreadful disease, catarrh."

Some people prefer to take tablets, rather than to take medicine in a fluid form. Such people can obtain Peruna tablets, which represent the medicinal ingredients of Peruna. Each tablet is equivalent to an average dose of Peruna.

Woman's Home Companion for Christmas.

The Christmas Number of Woman's Home Companion is one of the most beautiful of the holiday magazines. Its cover is in blue and gold—depicting the Madonna and Child. There is a beautiful painting in color by James Montgomery Flagg, occupying a full page. Another delightful and unique feature consists of two big pages of old-fashioned Christmas Carols, with decorations by Ernest Haskell.

For the Christmas Woman's Home Companion, Edwin Markham has written a most beautiful poem, "Before the Gospels Were," It tells the story of the gathering of the materials for the gospels by the disciples after Christ's ascension; "Before the Gospels Were" is greater than "The Man With the Hoe." It is, perhaps, the greatest poem of the generation.

It is safe to say that a magazine—even a Christmas magazine—offers stories by such an array of great writers as will be found in the December Companion—Josephine Dodge Daskam Bacon, Anna Katharine Green, Mary Wilkins Freeman, Florence Morse Kingsley, Juliet Wilbor Tompkins.

Above all else, the woman reader will find here a magazine of Christmas helps—hundreds of suggestions for the making of attractive and unique gifts; ideas for the table; for making delicious candies; new neckwear; embroidery; fashions—an almost bewildering array of practical Christmas suggestions.

In all the various weaknesses, displacements, prolapsus, inflammation and debilitating, catarrhal drains and in all cases of nervousness and debility, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the most efficient remedy that can possibly be used. It has to its credit hundreds of thousands of cures—more in fact than any other remedy put up for sale through druggists, especially for woman's use. The ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is composed have received the most positive endorsement from the leading medical writers on Materia Medica of all the several schools of practice. All the ingredients are printed in plain English on the wrapper enclosing the bottle, so that any woman making use of this famous medicine may know exactly what she is taking. Dr. Pierce takes his patients into his full confidence, which he can afford to do as the formula after which the "Favorite Prescription" is made will bear the most careful examination.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the best and safest laxative for women.

Neuralgia and Rheumatic Pains yield quickly to the influence of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. No bad after-effects.

New Tire Process.

Thomas F. Vanzandt an employe of the Standard Steel works at Lewistown has invented a new process for making tires for locomotive wheels. By his process the tires are manufactured without being handled with tongs, bars, swings, or other devices while in the heated state, which is conducive to flat faces, short flanges and other flaws.

The new process consists of a to with bloom, nine and fourteen inch punches on a solid base operated by compressed air cylinders. The lump of steel is lipped from the heated billet and passed through its various stages until ready for the finishing rolls, under one heat and without the aid of human hands and without injury to either carbon or tensible strength.

Mr. Vanzandt obtained permission from the Standard and made one order of three thousand tires and there was not a flaw or flat face in the entire lot. Chemical tests proved the tensile strength to be greater, and experts pronounced the work to be the best they had ever seen. The inventor has applied for patents and as soon as his device is properly protected he will have it placed on the market.

Armstrong—Ball.

Calvin R. Armstrong, son of the late L. D. Armstrong, and Miss Mary Ball, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. P. Ball, of Lock Haven, were married at the home of the bride's parents Wednesday evening. Rev. John A. McSporran, pastor of the Great Island Presbyterian church performed the ceremony. The groom is a prominent young business man of that city and the bride one of its most popular young ladies.

Double Turn at Avis.

The Williamsport Sun: "If the Fall Brook and Beech Creek divisions of the New York Central were to be used as a barometer to the general business situation of the country, it would indicate that the depression has run its course and that a real boom has set in.

"With a large list of temporarily suspended employes and many stored locomotives and cars a few weeks ago, the remarkable contrast at the present time is almost incredible. These divisions are now straining every point to take care of the enormous volume of traffic which has been delivered to them for movement and with every available man and equipment pressed into service it seems almost impossible to cope with the situation. It is said there are fifteen locomotives being brought here from the main line to help relieve the congestion.

"From a reliable source it was learned there are to be a half dozen firemen promoted, which means six additional engine crews. What will be the most welcome news is the probability of a night force being placed on at the shops, which will give employment to a large number of men. It is understood this is to take effect at once."

Mrs. John Shay, Sr.

Mrs. John Shay, Sr., one of Howard township's oldest citizens, died at her home Tuesday morning, following a paralytic stroke several weeks ago.

The deceased was aged about 91 years and had always been a resident of that neighborhood. She had been a member of the Methodist church since girlhood. Her husband was killed on the railroad a short distance from their home about sixteen years ago. The following children survive: Joseph and Samuel Shay and Mrs. Mathias Walker, of Howard; Saul, of Milesburg, Lionel, at home and Mrs. Wm. Monsel, of Bellefonte.

The funeral took place Thursday morning at ten o'clock, interment being made at Curtin.

Correspondence.

Milesburg

An interesting sketch of a trip to Frederick-burg, and Richmond, by John H. Huff of this place.

Left Bellefonte Tuesday morning, November 10th on train to Lewisburg and arrived at Harrisburg about 11 o'clock. Took dinner at a hotel at 327 and 329 Market street. Left Harrisburg at 11 p. m. and passed through Baltimore and Washington arrived at Fredericksburg about 6.30 in the morning. Went to the hotel and got breakfast and then walked out to see the old town we hadn't seen for 46 years. At eleven o'clock we assembled at the court house and marched to the National cemetery in the same formation as we did 46 years ago. After our arrival at the cemetery the following exercises were observed: Prayer by Rev. J. R Boyd, D. D. Address of welcome, Hon. Claud A. Swanson, Governor of Virginia. Address of welcome in behalf of Confederates, Judge John Gordon. Response by the Governor of Pennsylvania Address and transfer of monument to Governor Edwin S. Stuart by George F. Baer, president of the commission Unveiling of the monument by Miss Humphreys, daughter of Gen. Humphreys. Reception of the monument by Gov. Stuart and transfer to the care of the United States government. Acceptance in behalf of the United States government by the Assistant Secretary of war, Robert S. Oliver. Address by Col. A. K. McClure. Music by the Washington band and benediction.

We left Fredericksburg on the evening of the 11th at 6 o'clock for Richmond and arrived there about 9 p. m and started to hunt a place to stay all night, but all seemed to be full. We met a colored boy who took us to a private house, and they said they were full but invited us in until they would see what they could do for us. Finally she came and told us she had a bed if it was good enough for us and that we were welcome to it. It was a splendid bed and we accepted it. She did not say so, but I am satisfied that she gave up her own. In the morning we started out to see if we could recognize anything, but the city has changed wonderfully in 46 years. They have over a hundred thousand inhabitants and the streets and alleys are all cobbled and paved. Went to see the capitol and the monuments erected there, Gen. Washington's and a number of others. We then went to see where the old Libby prison stood, visited the Confederate Soldiers Home and were very kindly received. Saw the house that Stonewall Jackson was shot from, in a glass case just as he was when alive. They had 150 old soldiers there. I was never more kindly treated. J H. H.

Hello, Peggy! I presume you think I have forgotten you. Oh, no I never would forget an interesting friend like you. Just to remind you of those "Hot Air" tablets you were advertising recently, we have seen the results of what they have done to your friends. Now to illustrate what they have already done listen: One night recently a young man came from Snow Shoe to see his best girl and stayed so late that it was necessary to have his horse put away. When he was ready to take his departure for home he could not find his harness for some time. When he did he hastily threw the harness on what he supposed was his horse. While in the act of placing the bridle over the ears he noticed something peculiar about them and upon investigation found that the supposed horse had horns. Not thinking anything of that because he was almost asleep, he finished harnessing the beast. He did not find out his mistake until the cow said "moo" and Alfred thought it was time to skidoo.

Thanksgiving and Feasts.

Thanksgiving stands to most not as a memorial to the Pilgrim Fathers, nor yet as a day of sacred gratitude for prosperity and crops, but rather as a holiday marked by food. After loosened girths, when at last, in the phrasing of that traditional college girl, gastronomic satiety admonishes one that he has reached the ultimate stage of deglutition, there perhaps is to be traced often even pride in the accomplishment, rather than the most suitable shame. If so, humility may be recaptured by studying the feats of those who went before us. Our forebears could outeat us easily. Observe the items for a feast in honor of the Archbishop of York in the year 1466.

"Three hundred quarters of wheat, three hundred tuns of ale, one hundred tuns of wine, one pipe of hypocras, a hundred and four oxen, six wild bulls, a thousand sheep, three hundred and four calves, the same number of swine, four hundred swans, two thousand geese, a thousand capons, two thousand pigs, four hundred plovers, a hundred dozen of quails, two hundred dozen of the birds called 'rees,' a hundred and four peacocks, four thousand mallards and teals, two hundred and four cranes, two hundred and four kids, two thousand chickens, four thousand pigeons, four thousand cranes, two hundred and four bitterns, four hundred herons, two hundred pheasants, five hundred partridges, four hundred woodcocks, one hundred curlews, a thousand egrettes, more than five hundred stags, bucks, and roes, four thousand cold venison pasties, a thousand 'parted' dishes of jelly, three thousand plain dishes of jelly, four thousand cold baked tarts, fifteen hundred hot venison pasties, two thousand hot custards, six hundred and eight pikes and breams, twelve porpoises and seals, with a proportionate quantity of spices, sugared delicacies, and wafers or cakes."

The number of guests consuming the above is not recounted, but enough is known to realize that the English of those days overate themselves far more violently than we do to-day. They were as far from us in one direction as the Japanese are in another. Think of the connection between civilization and food, and take less turkey than you can eat—pleasantly flavored with a little cranberry, most fascinating sauce

The Issue of Today.

The issue of corruption versus honesty in city government is one which confronts the people of every American city. The great American writer, Cyrus Townsend Brady, has outdone himself this time and has written a powerful story on this theme. "The King and the Man" is the title of his wonderful story. Love and adventure, crime and passion, politics and business, are all included in his masterful portrayal of American life. "The King and the Man" is a story of today and will be printed in serial form in "The Philadelphia Press." The opening chapters will appear Sunday, Nov. 29. Order "The Philadelphia Press" in advance from your newsdealer so you will not miss the opening chapters for the demand will be unusually heavy.

What Others Say

"The Rev. B. F. Campbell assisted me in revival work in St. Paul's M. E. church, Danville, Pa., for ten days during February, 1906. It gives me pleasure to testify to his efficient service. His preaching is forceful, fearless, and Scriptural. His methods are along the lines of the old-time Methodist preacher. He emphazes with Scriptural authority, genuine repentance and a knowable religion. He is a safe evangelist. Our people greatly appreciated his work in our church."

Rev. S. B. Evans,
Central Penna. Conference, M. E. church.

He will be in the local United Evangelical church, Dec. 14th to 31st.

Ted's Turkey

A Thanksgiving Story by Epes Winthrop Sargent.

[Copyright, 1908, by M. M. Cunningham.]

"DO you think it's a square deal?" demanded Teddy. "There's Tom Bolan. He works in his blacksmith shop all day and gets his face as black as an end man. Then he goes home and washes up and he's all right. What difference does it make if I daub on zinc instead of dirt?"

"It isn't all that, Ted," said Sally. "Somehow you seem different."

"Just because you saw me," he laughed bitterly. "Biff Brattle told me I was the limit, but I didn't suppose I was bad enough to queer my luck with you."

"I can't explain," said Sally impatiently. "But somehow when I saw you last summer with all the people laughing at you I—I couldn't be proud of you any more. I just felt ashamed to sit there and remember that I was engaged to you."

"And you waited all this time to tell me," he said scornfully. "Let me live on in that fool's paradise all this time? Why, I could have gone with the Fordhams this winter if I had wanted to, but I told Blakeley that I'd come on to quarters just so I could be near you."

"I'm sorry, Ted," she said dully. "I like you still when I see you, but then every little while your face gets all white with the red marks on it, and I want to cry."

"Brattle was right," he said bitterly. "Let circus folk marry circus folk. They look deeper down than makeup."

"I suppose I ought to," said Sally. "But I just can't, Ted."

"All right," he said brusquely, trying to keep back the tears that would rise to his eyes. "I don't want the old ring back. I ain't got any one else to give it to. So long."

He climbed into the tiny road cart, cracked the whip, and the four ponies trotted off.

It was only four miles to Carstonville, where the Blakeley hippodrome, menagerie and circus lay in winter quarters, but every revolution of the little wheels seemed to put Sally—and happiness—miles behind.

Ted Stevens was a circus clown—not a very good one, but good enough for the one ring wagon show he traveled with. Last spring he had come down a few weeks before the opening to rehearse some bits of comedy, and he had met Sally Myerly.

She had never seen much of show folk, and she was attracted by his fun as well as by the wholesomeness of his manner. In the three weeks they saw each other Ted had won her heart. Then the show had gone south to open. It was midsummer before the slow moving outfit had come back to Carstonville to show, and that afternoon Ted had done his best because Sally was watching from the reserved seats. He had been rather disappointed at her lukewarm appreciation, but he did not realize what the matter was until he had come back with the show to go into winter quarters.

He had taken the meager salary offered to help care for the stock instead of playing at the vaudeville theaters through the winter, and it was with a happy heart that he took the pony four-in-hand out for exercise and had driven over to the Myerly farm.

He had received an enthusiastic welcome from ten-year-old Dick, but Sally had been cold, and at last she confessed that the sight of him in the ring had killed her love. Her ideas of romance were gleaned from cheap fiction, wherein English lords in disguise were more apt to be heroes than circus clowns. The sight of Ted in his motley had killed her ideals, and she wanted her freedom.

For the next couple of weeks he held to his work, trying in occupation to find forgetfulness. He had been rather clever with dogs once, and he got permission to try his hand at two of the ponies, just to occupy his mind, but in the long nights, when the silence was broken only by an occasional cry from the stock barn, he had plenty of time to think, for sleep came late to his tired eyes.

The day before Thanksgiving Thomas Myerly drew up at the sheds and climbed down from his seat. Ted saw him and went out to meet him.

"Sally wants to know if you won't bring them ponies over," he said. "Dick liked 'em so, and the doctor says that perhaps they'll rouse him."

"I'll see the old man," said Ted. "I guess it'll be all right, though. They need a run."

Permission was easily obtained when explanation was made, for the "old man" had youngsters of his own and a soft spot for children, and presently the gay little team was trotting down the frozen road.

Dick was brought to the window, well wrapped up, but he only waved a languid hand at the clown and turned his head away. Ted unhitched them and put them through their tricks, but with no greater success, and after he had put the team in the barn he went into the house.

"That's the first kid I ever saw that wasn't stuck on them ponies," he said. "What's the matter with him?"

"That's what we want to know," said a grave faced man who had been talking with Sally. "The little fellow seems to be sunk into a sort of coma, and we cannot rouse him. He will not eat, and unless we can give him a desire for food and interest him in things we shall just have to watch him slip away."

"You want to come out and look at them ponies, doc," said Ted suddenly. "Come on out to the barn."

The physician paused a moment. Then something passed in the glance of the two men, and they went out together. For half an hour they sat on an old wagon box and talked, and then the physician went back to the house and Ted hitched up the ponies. He drove out of the yard with a flourish of the whip toward Dick, who had been brought to the window to see him off. The little fellow answered with a weary wave of the hand, and Ted gritted his teeth as he drove off.

The next morning dawned clear and bright. It was almost Indian summer, and the windows were open in the Myerly home. Dick sat at the window, listlessly watching the people go driving by to church. Mrs. Myerly divided her time between the kitchen and the front parlor, to which Dick had been moved. A trumpet call sounded down the road, and she came hurrying in.

Around the bend there dashed a rider all crimson and gold, mounted on a black horse gaudy in crimson housings. With a swing he was in the yard, and just before the window he blew another blast on his trumpet.

"A turkey for Master Myerly fit for a king!" he announced in approved ringmaster tones. Then the black horse backed away, bowing to the astonished child, and wheeled and dashed up the road again.

Presently the herald returned at a more stately pace, preceding the most curious procession that had ever traversed the Huntville road. Just behind the rider came a fantastic clown, either foot on the back of a milk white horse. Behind him lumbered a huge elephant drawing a glittering chariot ablaze with gold and mirrors.

Slowly the procession lumbered into the yard. At the gate the clown dismounted and threw handsprings up to the very door. There he paused expectantly while the elephant ponderously entered into the yard. Then the doors at the back of the chariot swung open, and out fluttered a turkey six feet high. The clown sprang forward and with his whip made the bird face the window.

"Dick," he called, "here's your Thanksgiving turkey. If you don't eat every mouthful of it I'll make the elephant bite you."

"Elephants don't bite," laughed Dick, his face aglow with excitement.

"This one does—bad," said Ted darkly. "You wait and see. Turkey, bow to the gentleman what's going to eat you."

Solemnly the bird pranced forward and bent its neck. Then it followed Ted around to the back of the house, and the cavalcade followed, turning into the road. Down beyond the bend Ted was waiting with the bird, but the cambric skin covered with turkey feathers, the making of which had kept Ted up half the night, had been removed, and it was merely an ostrich that was bundled into the best chariot of the Blakeley outfit.

Late that night Ted turned up at the quarters. There had been a Thanksgiving dinner in the training ring, and all, from the "old man" to the hostlers, were sitting about on the benches swapping stories.

"Well," said the "old man" kindly, "did it work, Ted?"

"Did it work!" echoed Ted. "Say, I'm afraid the kid's more like to die of indigestion than starvation. He's all to the good. Everything's all to the good."

And the little group crowded about to shake his hand, for they knew that a romance seeking girl had at last really found the heart of the clown beneath the motley.

Nine Days' Thanksgiving.

In the time of Grecian prosperity and power that nation celebrated a feast very much resembling that of the Jews and supposedly borrowed from the latter. It was called the feast of Demeter or the Eleusinian mysteries, Demeter being the goddess of the cornfields, by whose especial favor only good harvests might be expected. The celebration continued during nine days, and offerings to the goddess were made, consisting of oblations of wine, honey and milk.

His Bluff Called.

"My dear, you grow prettier every day."

"And shabbier, John. Compliments are all very well, but I'd like to see a little ready cash occasionally."

The Wrong Horse.

Bridget had been in America only a few months, but she believed in the principle of pretending to know what she ought to know. She had been engaged as laundry girl in a small family of well to do people. When asked if she understood all the details of her work she unhesitatingly replied, "Sure I do, ma'am."

Her mistress was not quite satisfied, however, and while she was busy with her first washing looked in upon her. Bridget seemed to be doing all right, and she left without offering suggestions.

Next morning the ironing was in order, and Bridget was hard at it when her mistress looked in to say, "As you get the clothes ironed, just throw them over the horse."

"All right, ma'am," the busy laundry girl replied without stopping to raise her eyes from her work in hand.

The laundry room was located in an outhouse adjoining the barn, and occasionally the neighing of the family horse and the merry voice of Bridget resounded throughout the house.

Returning to the laundry house a couple of hours later, the lady could scarcely believe her eyes nor restrain her mirth when she beheld the family horse, standing patiently beside Bridget, loaded down with newly ironed sheets, pillowcases, tablecloths and lace trimmed waists and skirts. With an anxious look on her honest face Bridget observed. "I'm glad you've come, ma'am, for I'll have to have another horse."

What Kept Him.

"Why couldn't you have come home at a reasonable hour?" remarked an angry wife to her spouse.

"Could, m'dear, jes easy as not, but I—hic—was waitin' fer you t' go t' shleep!" replied the delinquent.

Soon Gets Over It.

"What is the honeymoon, pa?"

"Well, the honeymoon is the only period in a man's life during which he considers it funny to come home and find that his dear little wife hasn't dinner ready in time."

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease.

While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

It's a Good Sound Common Sense Policy

To use medicines only of KNOWN COMPOSITION, and which contain neither alcohol nor habit-forming drugs. It is foolish—often dangerous to do otherwise. The most intelligent people, and many of the most successful, conscientious physicians, follow this judicious course of action. The leading medical authorities, of all schools of medicine, endorse the ingredients composing Dr. Pierce's medicines. These are plainly printed on wrappers and attested under oath. There's no secrecy; an open publicity, square-deal policy is followed by the makers.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

THE ONE REMEDY for woman's ailments, sold by druggists, devised and gotten up by a regularly graduated physician of vast experience in treating woman's peculiar diseases and carefully adapted to work in harmony with her delicate organization, by an experienced and skilled specialist in her maladies.

THE ONE REMEDY for woman's ailments, sold by druggists, which contains neither alcohol (which to most women is the rankest poison) or other injurious or habit-forming drugs.

THE ONE REMEDY for women, the composition of which is so perfect and good that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient, in plain English on its outside bottle-wrapper, and attest the correctness of the same under oath.

We have a profound desire to avoid all offense to the most delicate sensitiveness of modest women, for whom we entertain the most sincere respect and admiration. We shall not, therefore, particularize here concerning the symptoms and peculiar ailments incident to the sex for which Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has for more than 40 years proven such a boon. We cannot, however, do a better service to the afflicted of the gentler sex than to refer them to Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a great family doctor book of 1000 pages, bound in cloth and given away gratis, or sent, post-paid, on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps—to cover cost of mailing only. All the delicate ailments and matters about which every woman, whether young or old, single or married, should know, but which their sense of delicacy makes them hesitate to ask even the family physician about, are made plain in this great book. Write for it.

TWO STATES QUARANTINED

Foot and Mouth Disease Epidemic is Getting Serious in State.

CLEAN-UP IS ORDERED

In the Buffalo Stock Yards where the Disease is Also Prevalent—Government Taking Prompt Measures.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE FORBIDDEN

Washington, Nov. 19.—Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture today issued orders placing in quarantine the entire States of New York and Pennsylvania, and forbidding the interstate movement of cattle, sheep, swine and goats, as a result of the sudden outbreak of a contagious foot and mouth disease.

Seventy-five of the most skilled veterinarians in the service of the department have been rushed into the two States for immediate and thorough investigation of the origin and extent of the disease. Dr. A. D. Melvin, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industy, stated tonight that the department's probe has not thus far revealed the origin of the disease, but he gave it as his opinion that his forces probably would be able to control the infection and prevent the outbreak from assuming alarming proportions.

The only point in New York affected so far as the officials know is the stock yards at East Buffalo, which were ordered closed pending a general cleaning up and the quarantine against the State was deemed imperative for the protection of adjacent States.

The outbreak of the disease in Pennsylvania seems of a grave nature. Its first appearance was about a week ago in the counties of Columbia, Montour, Northumberland and Union, and on November 12 Secretary Wilson placed a rigid quarantine over those counties. Dr Leonard Pearson, State Veterinarian of Pennsylvania worked with a force of department assistants to prevent a spread of the disease, but they were unable to cope with the situation.

The federal quarantine will apply to all cattle in New York and Pennsylvania and no one is prepared to say how long it will last. Over two hundred men will be put to work tomorrow in the East Buffalo yards disinfecting every inch of ground. This work will take at least three weeks. The state department's quarantine will be very strict.

There were eighty animals in the two carloads of yearlings which caused the trouble. They came from the west, but the exact points from which they were assembled have not been learned. Dr. B. P. Wends, chief inspector of the Buffalo branch of the Federal Bureau of Animal Industry has a clue that they came from Michigan and he started for there today to follow it up.

The Medical Fee.

Dr. Arthur C. Heffenger, discussing "The Medical Fee" in the North American Review, deplores the notion which prevails in some quarters that the physician charges more for his services than they are worth. He instances some abnormally large fees which have been paid to medical men and shows that these were justified either by the delicate nature of the services rendered or by unusual conditions attending them. He says:

"The American Medical association, our highest medical authority, has never attempted to establish an ethical fee. In point of fact, the fee evolves itself and ever has been and ever will be a graded one. The great bulk of practice is practically charity—that is, it represents small fees or no fees. This is true alike in the remote country districts and in the great metropolitan centers. There is one difference, however, which should be distinctly remembered, and that is that rural charity is generally deserved, whereas urban charity is often misplaced. It is stated that practically 33 per cent of the entire practice of New York city is charity and that in a third of such cases the doctor is imposed upon."

Same Vintage.

There are some things in this world for which not even the most profound rural philosopher can account to his own satisfaction.

"I never saw an animal move so slowly before in all my life!" cried an exasperated traveler in an Essex carrier's cart, behind which the clouds of a rapidly rising storm were growing blacker every moment. "Can't the horse go any faster? You had an excellent one fifteen years ago when I used to spend the summer here."

"That's the curious thing about it," said the driver, gazing first at his steed and then at the uneasy passenger in a mildly speculative way. "This hoss is the very same identical hoss that I drove that summer. I don't know what on earth's the matter with him! He seems to have lost his animation."—London Telegraph.

About Eggs.

In a hen's egg only one-fifth of the substance is nutritious, one-ninth part is refuse, and the remainder, the greater portion, is water.

White shelled eggs are not quite as good as yellow ones, for they contain a trifle more water and a little less fat. But your purveyor knows this and frequently colors his white eggs with coffee.

Judged by the amount of nutriment, a goose's egg is the most valuable. Next in order are ducks', guinea fowls', hens', turkeys' and plovers'. Eggs contain a large quantity of sulphur, which is purifying to the blood and good for the complexion.

To get the best egg you must feed your fowl on grain, and to cook it in the most digestible way you must not boil the water. Heat the water to 180 degrees and leave the egg in it for ten minutes. You will then digest every morsel. But if you boil it for three minutes no less than one-twelfth of it will fail to be digested. Thus if you eat two eggs boiled for three minutes every day you waste five dozen in a year.—London Mail.

The Leopard and the Pan.

One day a worthy Kulu housewife came out from her cooking and, standing on the ledge of rock at her door, emptied a pan of boiling water into the rank herbage growing below. It fell, splash, on the back of a sleeping leopard, who jumped perpendicularly into the air as high as the roof of the hut. What might have happened next? Who can say? But the astonished woman dropped the pan with a clang upon the rock, and the leopard took one leap downhill. The pan followed, and the leopard's downward leaps became longer and swifter as the pan bounded after it from rock to rock.

When last seen the leopard had just achieved a leap of about 350 feet to the very bottom of the ravine, thousands of feet below, and the pan had whirled about 500 feet over it on the opposite side. The leopard would have eaten the old woman with pleasure, but a pan which first scalded half the hide off him and then bounded clanging in his wake from the top of the Himalayas to the plains below was something which he could not face.—London Chronicle.

A Mexican Tradition.

"Boys, what's the matter? Fever? Die, then; die, then." That's the song the doves sing down in old Mexico when a native has penumonia, and almost invariably he lies down, refuses to swallow the medicine prescribed by the physician, resigns himself to his fate and in a few weeks he dies. The dove, however, sings the song in Spanish. It is a tradition among the Mexicans that once the fever accompanying an attack of pneumonia seizes them it is necessarily fatal, and because of this all medicine and all physicians are refused and the Mexican usually dies. The dove brings the story of death in its weird cooing, according to the belief of the natives, and many who have been seized with the fever who otherwise might have recovered have succumbed owing to their belief in the tradition. That is the reason, it is said, why penumonia is fatal to so many Mexicans.—New York Herald.

The Only Explanation.

Old Mrs. Smith was a chronic complainer and was constantly sending for the family physician and giving him a list of her fancied ailments. He always listened quite patiently, but was getting a little tired of hearing the same things over and over.

One day when the old lady considered herself in an unusually bad way she sent for the doctor and, after going over the usual list, ended by saying: "Really, doctor, I do not know what in the world is wrong with me. I can neither lay nor set."

The doctor looked at her a moment, then said in a solemn tone, "Madam, you must be a rooster."—Kansas City Independent.

Wanted Something Quicker.

Some few years ago I issued a policy on the life of a man who was far from being a model husband. I called for the premium every week and rarely got it without a grumble from the wife. The last time I called she said:

"I ain't going to pay you any more. There's Mrs. Smith only had her old man in M.'s society three months, and he's dead, and she's got the money. I'm going to put my old man in that, so you needn't call again."—Liverpool Mercury.

Flattered Him.

"I feel sure Miss Smith is in love with you," said a lady to her brother.

"Do you? It sounds too good to be true."

"Well, I heard her say yesterday that plainness in a man is not really a fault, but a sign of character."

Seedless Fruits.

Science so far has failed to furnish any explanation of the mystery of seedless fruits. They are not the outcome of the work of man. Man perpetuates them. He does no more. The seedless orange was found in a state of seedlessness.—Vegetarian.

Comforting.

Condemned Man (to his lawyer)—It's a long sentence, sir, to be sent to prison for life. Lawyer (inclined to a more hopeful view)—Yes, it does seem long, but perhaps you won't live a great while.

Of Good Material.

SHOT BROTHER KILLED SELF

Reuben Crown Failed to Get Estate Adjusted in Pittsburg.

THREATENS BROTHER

And Tells Him He Must Settle or Die—Victim Will Probably Recover from Injury.

A PROMINENT PITTSBURG POLITICIAN

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 18.—Coming to Pittsburg for the avowed purpose of forcing a settlement of an estate, Reuben Crown, of New York city, at 5 o'clock this evening shot his brother, Joseph Crown, a prominent attorney and politician, and then took his own life. Joseph Crown is in a hospital and will probably recover.

The Crown brothers had not seen each other for a long time. Attorney Crown is executor of an estate and he and his brother were interested in valuable Fifth Avenue property.

The double shooting occurred in the office of Joseph in the Bakewell Building. Attorney Harris, whose office is across the way could see the brothers through a window and he heard them wrangling.

The New York man stood on his feet and, brandishing his fists in the air, shouted:—

"You will settle or you will die."

Attorney Crown merely laughed. Suddenly his laugh was changed to a cry of terror. The man from New York had drawn a revolver and was pointing it at his brother's head. Attorney Harris, across the way, shouted with all his might. He sprang to the door of his office and made for Crown's suite. He was too late, however, for as he opened the door, Attorney Crown came staggering into his arms.

Just then another shot was heard, and when Harris hastened into the inner office he saw Reuben Crown lying on the floor, a bullet in his brain.

Working Too Hard.

The owner of the farm had been enjoying himself at the county fair, while his hardworking wife stayed at home to see that the farm suffered no loss in his absence.

"Well, Sarah," said the owner upon his return, "I'm about all tired out. Is the cows in the barn?"

"Yes; long since," replied his wife, barely looking up from the task then in hand.

"Is the hosses unharnessed an' fed?"

"Yes."

"Chickens locked up?"

"Yes."

"Wood chopped for mornin'?"

"Yes."

"Wagon heel mended an' ready t' start in th' mornin'?"

"Yes."

"Well, then," concluded the exhausted owner, with a sigh of relief, "let me have my supper. I'm goin' to' turn in. Farmin's beginnin' t' tell on me."—New York Herald.

The Popular Coral.

The dealer held up two strings of coral. They were of equal size, but one was dark and dull in hue, the other beautifully pink and translucent.

"The dark one," he said, "is worth 50 cents; the pink one is worth $500. That is what makes coral so popular. It suits all pocketbooks. All over the world it goes. These strings of rough, uncut beads are for the dead of India. They are put round the necks of the bodies about to be burned in the ghats. These large and blood red beads go to Africa. They are much liked by the natives, whose dark skins they perfectly suit. Here are a lot of coral hands with fingers extended in a V—the gesture that wards off the evil eye. The coral hands are for Italy, where the belief in their efficacy is widespread."—Buffalo Express.

He Would Return.

Marlow was three years old. One day his mother said to him. "Now, Marlow, you may go outdoors to play for awhile, but if I see you crossing the street to play with that naughty little boy Willie Burr again I'll give you a hard, hard spanking."

Half an hour later the mother looked out after her boy and saw him playing with Willie Burr. She raised the window and called with forced gentleness:

"Marlow, come here to me!"

Marlow came, but as he did so he turned to his companion and said:

"You stay wight here, Willie. I'm doin' in to det spanked. I'll be wight back."—Delineator.

Catching Rats.

The best way to catch rats is to put any animal substance, well perfumed with oil of rhodium, into a trap. This induces them to enter readily and even draws them from a considerable distance, as they are extremely partial to this oil. An ounce of oil of rhodium will cost you 50 cents. Catnip to a cat is nothing like rhodium to a rat. Oil of rhodium is made from a species of bindweed and is used in perfumery.—New York Press.

Mr. Thorton's Recital.

The men's mass meeting in the court house Sunday afternoon was not as largely attended as at some of the previous meetings, and those who were present missed a rare treat. The meeting was in charge of Secretary Meserve, the scripture lesson was read by Prof. James R. Hughes and prayer was made by Rev. Paul of the A. M. E. church. The speaker of the afternoon was Prof. Earle G. Thorton, of the Ithaca conservatory of music. He gave a recital from Ralph Conner's story of "The Doctor," a work which has been instrumental in leading many men into the church. The story is one that will appeal to all and the excellent manner in which it was presented by Prof. Thorton made it more impressive. He is an elocutionist of ability and held the attention of his audience during the entire recital of his adaptation from "The Doctor."

Will Plant Young Trees.

Lincoln Crowell, an assistant of the forest service of the United States government was in Clinton county last week and spent some time in looking over the land of the Queens Run Fire Brick company. Mr. Crowell came there by request of the company and after a tour of inspection advised that the lands be replanted with jack pine for mine props, but that the land is also well adapted for the growth of white pine for timber purposes. The company will begin next spring to replant the waste lands with jack pine and white pine, which a future generation will reap the benefit of. The young trees can be secured from the commercial nurseries.

Some corporations have, however, realized the dangers from the denudation of the forests and are planting immense tracts of land with young trees which they raise in their own nurseries established a few years ago. The Pennsylvania Railroad company is one of these and has planted over a million trees. Some of the paper mill companies also have a sufficient number of young trees growing to keep them perpetually supplied with paper wood.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly And this is true of the Heart Kidneys. The old fashioned way osing the Stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first pointed out this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs", said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve". When these nerves fail then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative, A few days test will surely tell! Sold by J. Zeller & Son.

"No shade, no shine, no fruit, no flowers, no leaves,—November!" Many Americans would add no freedom from catarrh, which is so aggravated during this month that it becomes constantly troublesome. There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, completely cures catarrh, and taken in time prevents consumption. We cannot see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its radical and permanent cures. It is undoubtedly America's greatest Medicine for America's Greatest disease—Catarrh.

Tickling, tight Cough, can be surely and quickly loosened with a prescription Druggists are dispensing everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. —The question as to who wrote "David Garrick" has led to quite a discussion in Bellefonte, and although there have been some heated arguments its authorship has not been definitely settled. The circumstances under which the play was written caused many to believe that it was written by Shakespeare, but that could not be as Garrick was playing "Hamlet" in London when he actually experienced the romance which inspired the play. A great many Bellefonte scholars have been consulted but no one has been able to give a satisfactory answer. Some insist that its author was Robertson but they have not been able to show whether he wrote the story or whether he dramatized it after it had been written by another. Who can enlighten us on this question.

The church at Howard which was heretofore included in the Lock Haven parish will likely be transferred to the Bellefonte parish and the assistant priest will divide his time between there and the College, as well as assist Rev. McArdle in the work in Bellefonte.

William I. Harvey, one of Lock Haven's most prominent citizens and energetic business men, died at his home in that place Tuesday morning at 3:15 o'clock. Mr. Harvey had been ill for about six months and his death was due to hardening of the arteries of the heart.
